

Marian Specter

About Marian

Sandy Point's Marian Specter is an amateur pianist who especially enjoys two-piano four-hands and one-piano duets.

Marian took piano lessons as a child but stopped around eleven as music didn't seem central to her at the time.

As the years progressed she found herself back at the piano, this time taking lessons in New York. Marian splits her year, spending half in New York and the other half in Sandy Point, playing piano in both places, and enjoying both very different scenes.

Marian has improved as a pianist, both in her solo work and in her work with her Sandy Point piano partner, Malcolm Bruce. Her biggest sense of accomplishment comes from playing Astor Piazzolla's tangos – a new classical form from the New World!

Marian Specter

Marian Specter playing the piano