

Philip Harding

About Philip

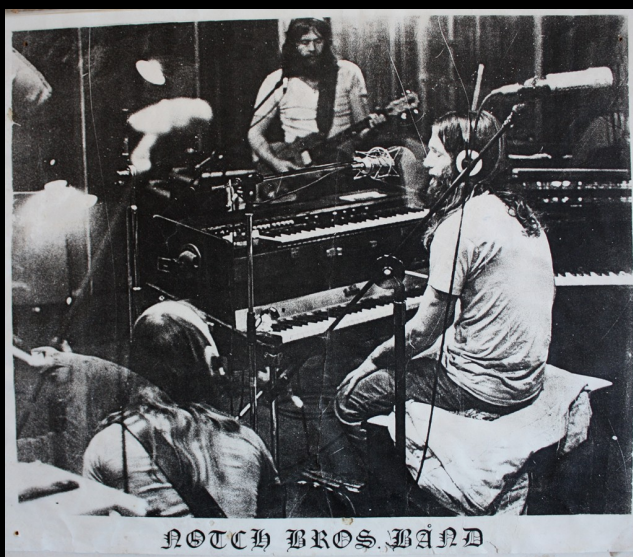

Philip Harding is a singer, songwriter, and guitarist. He is a former member of the popular band Notch Brothers and has passed on his knowledge of music to others as a music teacher. In the Notch Brothers he was the lead singer and guitarist – he also played fiddle - and helped write many songs. When writing a song Philip says he draws upon issues that evoke strong emotions in the listener.

Philip made his own guitar, which he's played since his days as front man for the Notch Brothers.

Music was a part of Philip's life right from the beginning. His father was also musical. In his youth he played in a Rock n Roll band and in the early 70's discovered a passion for blues music. Later, he helped create the Notch Brothers, a group that specialized in southern rock and free flow. He considers being able to collaborate with his former Notch Brothers band mate Allan Crosby on Allan's C.D. "Zero to Fifty-Five" and working as a teacher to assist people in developing their skill his greatest achievements.

Philip Harding in the recording studio with Notch Brothers band mates Donnie Crosby and Laurie MacDonald. Drummer Alan Crosby was in a different part of the studio.

Philip Harding